"Christmas Eve at Grandma's"

One Christmas Eve, the Miller family squeezed LEFT and RIGHT around Grandma's big table.

Uncle Joe sat on the LEFT of Aunt May, who kept glancing RIGHT at the dessert tray.

Then she said, 'Now look RIGHT!' and they turned RIGHT to see Grandpa sneaking cookies.

The gifts were piled high on the LEFT side of the tree and low on the RIGHT side.

Dad said, 'Pass the potatoes to the LEFT!' and Mom said, 'Pass the gravy to the RIGHT!'

When the carolers arrived, everyone shifted LEFT to make room, then shifted RIGHT for cocoa.

At midnight, they all looked LEFT out the window, then RIGHT - and swore they saw reindeer.
